

CHINATOWN HEALTH
CLINIC FOUNDATION

ANNUAL REPORT

2014

Dear Friends,

Thank you for your generous contributions to the Chinatown Health Clinic Foundation.

In 2014, the Foundation continued to raise funds that support the Charles B. Wang Community Health Center, a leading community-based primary health care provider in the New York metropolitan area. The Health Center's belief is that everyone deserves the opportunity to achieve their highest level of health. Their model of providing both quality care and culturally appropriate services has earned them recognition by the federal Bureau of Primary Health Care as a National Quality Leader in 2014. The award is given to high performing health centers that meet or exceed the national benchmarks for quality care.

Gifts like yours helps to provide crucial services and programs created to address the unique social and health needs of minority communities. The special needs team in the pediatric department provides much needed resources and additional support to families with special needs children. The award-winning hepatitis B program delivers testing, monitoring and treatment services, and ensure that individuals identified with chronic infections are linked to accessible and affordable care. Our women's health program provides bilingual breast cancer support groups and breast health education to Asian American women living with breast cancer. These are just a few of numerous initiatives that benefit minority communities in New York City.

Your donations also support the Dickson Hee and Dr. Thomas Tam scholarships. These scholarships provide career development and learning opportunities to the Health Center's frontline health care workers and to youth in the community.

We deeply appreciate your support and partnership. Together, we will continue to improve access to quality healthcare for underserved Asian Americans and other vulnerable populations.

Sincerely yours,

Raymond Fong, MD.
